

Course offered for the STAT PhD program starting from a.y. 2019/2020

TITLE	From the experimental design to a (scientific) job interview
Lecturer	Stefano Vanin (2 CFU)
Duration and Credits	2 CFU (8 hours of lecture activity per student)
Course description	This module is delivered in English and introduces the students to two important points of their professional development: how to start a scientific research (PART A) and how to apply and manage a job application (PART B). The module will cover the following topics: PART A -literature search and critical evaluation of the published research -experimental design: how to formulate the correct question(s), how to develop the correct approach PART B -how to write and update a curriculum vitae -how to write a presentation letter -the presence on the social media -how to manage a job interview This course is for all students and there are no prerequisites because all graduated students should have acquired at least 3 CFU of English language.
Course organization	The module is organized in frontal teaching, audiovisuals and exercises to be performed individually and as a part of a group.
Teaching period	March-April 2020 (4 class activities of 2 hours each)